Another in my series of "new", green sewing machines, here's one I found while thrifting several cities north of my house. This is the very strong Adler 152, a truly excellent straight stitch machine that hasn't seen much use. Once I oiled it, it ran so fast that the entire cabinet slightly vibrated.

Cosmetically, I've seen better examples of this machine but nearly every other 189A I've seen has at least some small areas of paint loss. Since I'm very interested in a complete refurb, a paint-matching trip to the auto parts store is on the agenda not only because I want the machine to look its best but also to keep the existing paint around the dings from flaking.
