Coverbs And Complex Predicates In
Coverbs and Complex Predicates in Wagiman. Stephen Wilson. Wagiman is an Australian Aboriginal language spoken in the Top End of the Northern Territory. It possesses an unusual open class of words which the author calls "coverbs". Most frequently, coverbs are paired with an inflecting verb from a closed class to form a complex predicate: the coverb and inflecting verb jointly determine the verbal semantics and argument structure of the clause.

A special type of complex verb construction, with a verb in auxiliary function, is the progressive construction (§3.3). Coverbs may also be combined with a simple or complex verb in the function of secondary predicate (§3.4); in this function, they are either separated from the main predicate by an intonation unit boundary,

SIMPLE AND COMPLEX PREDICATES
Abstract While complex verbs are well attested in Australian languages and elsewhere, in MalakMalak two systems of multi-verb constructions combine in a typologically rare setup: First, complex predicates consist of an uninflecting open-classed coverb and an inflecting verb (IV) of a closed class of six.

Predicates Once you have located the subject, the predicates are easy to find. A predicate shows action. The subject is the one who is doing the action. There are different kinds of predicates just like there were for subjects. Simple Predicate The simple predicate, which can be from one to four words long, is the verb in the complete predicate.

Understanding Simple and Complete Predicates Lesson Plan
The term coverb (like preverb) is also sometimes used to denote the first element in a compound verb or complex predicate. There, the coverb supplies significant semantic information, and the second element (a light verb) is inflected to convey mainly grammatical information.
