Fragmented Ties Salvadoran Immigrant Networks

Fragmented Ties argues that hostile immigration policies, shrinking economic opportunities, and a resource-poor community make assistance conditional and uneven, deflating expectations both on the part of the new immigrants and the relatives who preceded them. In contrast to most studies of immigrant life that identify networks as viable sources of assistance, this one focuses on a case in which poverty makes it difficult for immigrants to accumulate enough resources to help each other.

Fragmented Ties Salvadoran Immigrant Networks in America

In Fragmented Ties, Cecilia Menjívar presents a portrait of immigrant networks that is often at odds with the "overly romanticized notions of immigrant unity and solidarity" implicit in many of the depictions of immigrant networks found in the migration literature. Based on several years of fieldwork in the Mission District of San Francisco, the book examines the personal interactions, exchanges, and systems of mutual support that immigrants engage in and construct in going about the ...
